Introduction

The Lights on Women initiative at the Florence School of Regulation, in collaboration with partner Landwärme, is proud to launch the LUCE Awards.

The awards

As key policies such as the Green Deal are set out worldwide to facilitate the transition towards carbon neutrality, they also might serve as a catalyst to move towards gender equality, empowerment and justice.

In this context, the LUCE Awards are meant to further the just transition's gender mainstreaming objectives while highlighting the contributions and achievements of women of all ages, nationalities and backgrounds working in energy, climate and sustainability.

Awarding ceremony and prizes

The LUCE Awards will give two prizes under the categories:

- Emerging Talent: this category will recognize up-and-coming female academics, entrepreneurs, founders (also of non-registered projects), and young leaders of civil society who are working to advance the Green Transitions agenda worldwide.
- Legacy Women: this category will honour the achievements of senior female professionals who have successfully used their platforms and voices to push forward the energy, climate, and sustainability sectors.

The awarding ceremony will be held in Florence on 16 May 2023. The two winners will receive one free seat in an FSR residential course and will be invited to attend the awarding ceremony.
